General Description

MISSION

We build innovative educational and career development programs that strengthen and advance The City University of New York's commitment to promoting equity and mobility for its students.

CUNY CULTURAL CORPS

In early 2016, the New York City Department of Cultural Affairs released a report entitled "Diversity in the New York City Department of Cultural Affairs Community," which concluded that the diversity of staff and leadership at City-funded non-profit cultural organizations does not reflect the demographic diversity of the City's population. New York City and many foundations including the Mellon Foundation have made a commitment to address this lack of diversity in the cultural sector.

CUNY students represent New York City. The City and CUNY firmly believe that creating opportunities for CUNY students to access the City's cultural institutions, to build professional networks within them, to develop real-world skills applicable to these organizations and institutional knowledge about them, will support the City's important goal of diversifying the workforce in New York City's cultural institutions and ultimately creating a more inclusive cultural sector.

To affirm this belief in diversifying Cultural institutions around New York City, the CUNY Cultural Corps was born. CUNY Cultural Corps program offers students paid, part-time professional learning experiences during the academic year in arts and cultural organizations throughout New York City. Students interested in participating must submit an application and meet program eligibility requirements. Cultural Corps members work up to 12 hours per week for 24 weeks during the fall and spring semesters at their placement sites, providing added capacity to partnering organizations, developing transferable professional skills and gaining unique exposure to the work of New York City's artistic and cultural community. Recently, the program has expanded with a grant from the Mellon Foundation to serve more CUNY students and increase the program footprint.
