General Description

The John Jay College Institute for Justice and Opportunity is seeking a senior level program administrator to be responsible for oversight of Institute programs to increase college access and success for people who have been involved in the criminal legal system. To learn more about the John Jay College Institute for Justice and Opportunity go to Institute for Justice and Opportunity.

The College Access portfolio includes College Initiative (CI) which serves 500 people a year and enrolls students in colleges across CUNY, as well as some SUNY and private colleges; HSE Connect, our partnership with the Manhattan Educational Opportunity Center to aid students in earning their high school equivalency degree; and College Pathways which provides for-credit college classes at Rikers. The Support Services unit conducts intake assessments on new students, provides reentry planning and transitional services to students being released from John Jay's college-in-prison program at Otisville Correctional Facility, and connects students with needed social services in the community. Peer mentoring and alumni activities are important dimensions of the spirit of community and mutual support that distinguish Institute programs.

College Access is currently in the exciting process of restructuring its workflow, program protocols and approach to serving students. In addition, we recently implemented a powerful new database – Salesforce – that will allow staff to engage in continuous quality improvement as we shift toward a more data-driven approach to evaluating our work.

The Institute for Justice and Opportunity is seeking a seasoned leader that can support and lead change, by helping the Programs reach its next level of development. The new director will be committed to leading a team that can provide the highest quality of service to students and will be able to support the growth and development of staff.

This role requires focus, attention to detail, and the ability to manage competing priorities in a fast-paced environment. In addition, successful candidates will possess the ability to support and develop staff and engage and inspire a team. Candidates must be committed to social justice for people with lived experience in the criminal legal system.

The Director reports directly to the Deputy Director of Programs and will supervise the Manager of College Initiative, Manager of Support Services and the Coordinator of Peer Mentoring and Alumni Services. In addition, the Director also manages our relationship with a contracted provider of civil legal services which aids students in cleaning up their rap sheets and learning how to protect themselves from discrimination based on a background check.
